

How Career Services Supports Faculty & Staff

Career Services supports the University of Richmond's mission to prepare students for lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership by helping them draw connections between their liberal arts education and their post-graduate goals. We know that career advising happens in a variety of settings and that faculty and staff are critical partners in helping students develop and achieve their goals.

Career Services wants to support you in your role as educators, mentors, and advisors. We encourage faculty/staff to take advantage of the following:

Learn how to locate and track your alumni via LinkedIn.

Request data about post-graduate outcomes for your former students.

Utilize/share resources in FAQ section of our website when having career conversations with advisees.

Clarify details about UR Summer Fellowships (email: ursf@richmond.edu.)

Request a presentation for your class, department, or student organization. We are also happy to cover a class session if you're unable to be there for any reason.

Refer students to Career Services to continue career and professional development discussions.
